REVUE SMASH HIT OPENS AT MOYSE HALL BEFORE PACKED HOUSE—CROWD ENTHUSIASTIC

ARMSTRONG GETS ENCORE

St. Martin Sings Well; Ashkanese Portrays Mae South

CHORUS WELL BALANCED

Music Better Than Ever; Armstrong, Hingston and Ross Compose Numbers

By A. J. I.
THE Red and White Revue of 1938 which opened last night to a capacity house is the first smash hit to be produced at McGill in many a bleak year. From first night evidence it would seem that the Revue will play to record crowds this season. Music, choruses, settings and skits were all of the highest calibre. The whole show was colorful, clever, and entertaining. Pacing was swift, scene followed scene with exhilarating variety. The Revue deserves to be S.R.O. It's tops! Feature spot in the show was the smart, sophisticated rendition of "There's No Substitute for Love," written by Iris Armstrong and Bill Hingston, which stopped the show. The poised, petite Iris, coupled with the nonchalant Top Emery, did much to put over the brilliant lyrics of this number. So enthusiastic was the audience that they were forced to take an encore, something which is unprecedented in Revue history within the last few years.

ST. MARTIN SINGS.
Madeleine St. Martin, beautiful song stylist, sang two lovely numbers, "Dreams Alone" and "Say When," both by Sam Tolchinsky. It is regrettable that some of the effect of her voice was lost due to poor orchestration and bad acoustics. However, some of these faults can be remedied for future performances.
"Nellish, the Beautiful Lightoush Keperish Daughter (Sh)" was full of clowning and comedy that is vaguely reminiscent of old fashioned mellers, on the Corona Barn style. Bernice Ashkanese, veteran of many a historic revue skit, was excellent as Mae South, giving a portrayal of that hardened woman who reforms that shocked one with its stark reality.

STEVENSON AS CINDERELLA
The other skit, entitled for some unknown reason, "Cinderella, a Grim Business," contains an exquisite satire upon campus radicals, reds in general, and the famed three bears of Russia—Stalin, Lenin and Trotsky, as well as a very smooth bit of work by Rita Stevenson, in the lead. The act abounds with quick punch lines, effective gags and doubtful jokes. Mildred Heller, Harriet Bloomfield and the three bears were shown to good effect.
Among the clever pieces of irony was a piece called "A Couple of Social Problems," with Carlo Bos as Joe College and Talbot Johnston as the erudite thinker. The skit recalls to mind a Kaufman-Hart political satire, clever and well-executed in theme and idea.
Barbara "Cornelia Otis Skinner" Whitley was seen in a bright conversational piece with herself. As usual, her portrayal of one of those women who are too busy to think was more than well received.

CHAMBERLAIN PORTRAYED
"The Tie That Binds," a pertinent political comment on the contemporary scene which features Chamberlain leaning towards swastikas, lost much because it was not sufficiently impertinent.
Music this year was by far superior to anything that the Revue has ever produced. The show opened with "Heart Beats," by John Kettles, who also was responsible for "Tropical Swing," both very good, solid numbers. Bruce Ross, responsible

BAR ADDED TO NOVEL CABARET

Takes Place in Convention Room of Mount Royal Hotel

Orchestras—Under Reggie Childs and Rusty Davis Furnish Dance Music

WITH final preparations complete, the Red and White Rhythm Cabaret, which will take place tomorrow at the Mount Royal Hotel, promises to be the big social event of the year. As everyone knows, it is the first dance held at McGill to have an imported band and that band is Reggie Childs. In addition to Childs and his orchestra, Rusty Davis and his band have been engaged to give the crowd continuous dancing.

A novel attraction at the dance will be the installation of a bar in the convention room. This will save anyone the necessity of going down to the Piccadilly Club if they feel like a mixed drink, and it will be open as long as the dance is in progress. The convention room is on the ninth floor of the Hotel, just off the main ballroom.

Tickets have been priced at $6.00 per couple by the executive and may be obtained at the Mount Royal Hotel, the Union Tuck Shop, or from any of the janitors in all faculty buildings. Also there are quite a few students on the campus who are selling them. However, if you fail to get your tickets at any of these places, they may be bought at the dance.

As in former Cabarets, an impromptu floor-show will be a feature. Jack Waud, renowned for his past performances in the Revue, will act as master of ceremonies. The show will consist of songs from the show, sung by their original performers, and Rusty Davis, who arranged the songs, will provide the musical background.

The patrons for this year's Cabaret are Dr. and Mrs. Douglas, Col. and Mrs. Bovey and Mrs. Grant. Unfortunately, however, the Principal and his wife will be unable to

Programme First in History of McGill — Glee Clubs, Revue, Daily Participate — Murray Sends Congratulations

COLLEGE life at McGill went on the air yesterday afternoon for the first time over the CBM's "University Hour", when campus organizations both at McGill and Macdonald College combined to give the Canadian public a picture of the daily activities of the University. During the program, which was directed by Tom Kierans, visits were made to the campus, to the office of the Daily, and to the reading room of the Union, while the Glee Clubs, and members of the Red and White Revue broadcasted from the CBM studios. From of Home," the voice of Commentator Bob Dunn was heard from the Reading Room of the Union: "Just outside of the door I can hear the click of billiard balls and the steady smack of a lively ping-pong game. On the same floor is the Athletic Office, presided over by the well-known Major Forbes, and, speaking of athletics, here's John Ferguson, manager of the McGill senior hockey team; how did your team do this year, John?" "Well, Bob, the big Red Machine won both the Canadian and the International Collegiate Hockey titles for the second year in a row, and next year we hope to keep both titles right here at McGill."

Visiting "Varsity" Editor Says C.U.P. Promises Great Success

"THE newly-formed Canadian University Press, popularly known as the C.U.P., already shows great promise, and we are particularly pleased with the co-operation the Daily has given us. The Daily has given us more hot news than any other paper in Canada, especially with reference to the Padlock Law," stated Les Vipond, Vice-President of the C.U.P. and Editor-in-Chief of the Toronto Varsity, when interviewed by the Daily last night.

Les is in Montreal for the weekend chiefly in order to act as guest editor of the Daily, and to make a comparison of newspaper methods. He arrived last night from Kingston, where he has acted as guest editor of the Queen's Journal Wednesday night.

"Every college newspaper is different," he stated, "and it is always very interesting and instructive for an editor to study the ways of other editors."

The Varsity, for example, is altogether different in form from the Daily. It is a tabloid in size, its staff is smaller, consisting only of sixty men to the Daily's 100, but it has its own press, run by two of the students.

The visitor declared that the C.U.P. has already performed a great service in unifying student opinion. He pronounced himself pleased with the co-operation he had found in inter-varsity relationships shown at the Winnipeg Conference, one of whose greatest accomplishments was the formation of the C.U.P.

Asked his opinion of sports activities, Les stated that sports activities too frequently lead students to forget that they are all at college for the same purpose, namely, that of getting an education, and a great part of this education is obtained in newspaper work. Though Les is now the big-wig of the Varsity, he can proudly state that he is a self-made man, having risen from the lowly stage of cub reporter through the successive grades of Assistant Managing Editor, News Editor, to the exalted position which he now occupies.

DUCKWORTH BEGINS TALKS ON CAREERS

Insurance Openings to Be First in Series

On Monday, March 14th, there will be a lecture by Mr. E. E. Duckworth, Associate Comptroller of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, at 5.15 p.m. in the Union Grill Room. This lecture is to be the first of a short series of talks, sponsored by the University in co-operation with the Students' Council, on the subjects of careers for students. Mr. Duckworth is an outstanding expert in insurance, and he will discuss the openings in that field for college graduates.

It has long been felt by many that few students have the opportunity of learning what possibilities are open to them upon graduation from college. A student may perhaps go through college without stopping to consider his future career, and the University has planned this series of informal talks with the view of showing students, especially those men or women taking non-professional courses, the various positions they may obtain. It is proposed that the three lectures to be given this session should cover the fields of (1) insurance, (2) the pulp and paper industry, and (3) accountancy.

The following is an extract from the Report of the 1937 Congress of the National Union of Students of England and Wales: "There should be a first-year course on careers available for all students."

HUDSON SPEAKS IN MOYSE HALL

Author of Books and Pamphlets on International Politics

Bemis Professor at Harvard University to Lecture at Eleven a.m. Today

THIS morning at eleven o'clock, Professor Manley O. Hudson, Bemis Professor of International Law at Harvard University, will lecture on the subject: "The Working of the World Court." The lecture will take place in Moyse Hall. Professor Hudson, in addition to his work at Harvard, is at present a member of the permanent court of International Justice at the Hague. Professor Hudson, a distinguished American, was born in 1886 in Missouri. He left his birthplace, St. Peters, to attend the William Jewell College. Graduating from this university in 1906, Professor Hudson did several years' post-graduate work at Harvard University.

Today Professor Hudson holds many important positions. Among other things, he is a trustee of the World Peace Foundation and also one of the Vice-Presidents of the American Society of International Law.

As the author of numerous discussions on international questions, (Continued on Page Four).

NEW I.R.C. STUDIES POLITICAL AFFAIRS

Temporary Committee Under Alf. Pick Formed

Since there is no teaching of international affairs at McGill, and since there is a great number of students who are interested in the subject, the International Relations Club was constituted yesterday afternoon at Strathcona Hall.

By last October, 827 of these clubs had already been formed under the sponsorship of the Carnegie Foundation. The attempt to form one at McGill was headed by Alfred Pick, who presided at yesterday's meeting. Mr. Pick opened the meeting by outlining the functions of the Carnegie Foundation in connection with the clubs. One of these is the printing of a fortnightly report of international happenings absolutely without editorial comment. The newly-formed club will occupy itself with the impartial study of world affairs.

A committee was formed to establish connections with the Carnegie Foundation and draw up a tentative programme of activities for the next year. Headed by Alfred Pick, the committee consists of Grace Wales, Phil Vineberg and Ted Sourkes.

'MCGILL NEEDS MCKECHNIE'

"MCGILL NEEDS MCKECHNIE." The slogan—McGill needs McKechnie—which appeared on yesterday's Daily was in no way authorized by the Managing Board. The papers were delivered in the usual manner by the publishers. After delivery they were tampered with by persons unknown.

J. H. McDonald, Esq., Editor-in-Chief, McGill Daily, Dear Sir,

In as much as that there are indications that the authorship of the misuse of the Daily this morning, via stamping the front page, might rest in this Society, I wish to state that the Society as such had absolutely no part in this matter. It is possible, I do not deny, that the authors are members of the Engineering Undergraduate Society, but the Executive of the Society had no notice of or part in this occurrence.

I am sure that no one in Engineering could have intended to abuse the Daily, after the fair treatment our Society has had at the hands of the latter this year. My personal opinion is that this was just another practical joke that is not liable to repetition, and I hope you will see it in that way, since it is obvious that the jokers, whoever they are, could have had nothing to gain by this episode.

You may, if you see fit, publish this letter. Hoping that this will clear up any misunderstanding.

I remain, Sincerely yours,
D. O. MACCALLUM, President, Engineering Undergraduates Society.

The Editor, McGill Daily, Dear Sir,

I should like to correct an error in my platform which I believe has caused a great deal of embarrassment to the Managing Board of the Daily.

In clause (3) regarding Council business, Mr. McDonald has brought it to my attention that he has had printed the two items in the Council minutes which the Council instructed him to include in the Daily News.

I wish to offer my sincere apologies to the Daily staff for this error.

Sincerely,
J. K. MCKECHNIE.

The final meeting of the year is being held by the Social Problems Club on Monday from 1.30 to 1.55 in Strathcona Hall. The main item on the agenda is election of officers to carry on during the summer, and to prepare the early fall program. Members only will vote on the slate of nominations which will be presented. Nominations will also be taken from the floor. The final party of the year will be held on Saturday, March 19.

Guest Editors

The precedent of exchanging editors that has been established this year by the Canadian University Press presents a real privilege and opportunity to the editors involved that should have worthwhile and lasting effects.

Each university paper has in the past built up its own traditions and methods without enough thought as to how its affairs could be improved and how other papers dealt with problems that are common to college journalism. An effective means of threshing out these problems is found in the practice of a visiting editor going through the routine of a contemporary.

The McGill Daily, the only university daily in Canada other than The Varsity, holds an enviable reputation in the field of Canadian college journalism. It is respected and admired by editors from coast to coast. We therefore deem it a privilege to be allowed to edit the Daily and anticipate discovering ideas and methods to pursue back home.

—LES VIPOND.

College Journalism

One of the most frequently heard complaints concerning Canadian Universities is their lack of any courses in journalism destined to meet the vocational needs of students preparing for work in the newspaper business. We have often looked with envious eyes to the courses in journalism provided by many universities to the south of us.

Yet all has not been serene in American journalism schools. Many authorities in the newspaper and educational world have doubted the value of these schools. Harvard in particular has maintained a negative attitude regarding their value. That institution turned down the two million dollar offer of Joseph Pulitzer in 1903 which Columbia later snapped up and with which President Butler established the Columbia School of Journalism. As recently as last January over a million dollars was bequeathed Harvard "to promote... standards of journalism". Yet President Conant did not establish a school of journalism—the money is to be spent not for a school, but for fellowships for a dozen or so newspaper men who have had at least three years experience in newspaper work and who may enter Harvard and study any subjects, such as Economics, History or English, that would prove beneficial in their particular type of journalism.

This contempt for journalism schools was voiced last week by President Hutchins of the University of Chicago at the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association. He said in part, "The shadiest educational ventures under respectable auspices are the schools of journalism. They exist in defiance of the obvious fact that the best preparation for journalism is a good education. Journalism itself can be learned, if at all, only by being a journalist."

The editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post has gone on record as expressing a view similar to President

Hutchins. He thinks that a B.A. represents a training for journalism much superior to that of a B.J. Journalism to him implies "a broad education and a familiarity with the arts and sciences which constitute our contemporary civilization."

Of course there is another side to the story. It is even apparent that all editors do not agree with him and with President Hutchins. In a poll conducted among eight editors by the trade paper, Editor and Publisher three did agree, two didn't and the others had no definite views. One editor, of the Norfolk Virginia Ledger-Dispatch, said, "It doesn't make sense for newspapers to pay salaries to cubs learning fundamentals that could have been beaten into their heads before they got on anybody's pay roll." Naturally enough, the Deans of the journalism schools have unanimously endorsed schools of journalism. The editor of the Marquette University Tribune and member of the journalism school there, has written supporting the schools and claims that these schools are primarily devoted to science, languages, economics, and philosophy with the addition of technical newspaper subjects.

Students in the better universities of central Canada can afford to be smug about the whole situation. Certainly no universities can boast a higher standard than the Arts colleges of Canada with their splendid educational facilities. The much talked of "general background in arts" can be obtained here as well, if not better than any other place.

As for the "technical training," we feel personally, that, at the most, only the essentials are necessary for the beginner. The important thing is the wide knowledge and cultural background. We also believe that ample technical training is provided in the larger universities of Canada, by the college newspapers. Their facilities and technical methods are well adapted for beginners in journalism. Every journalistic minded student should take the opportunity of working on his college paper.

Success on the Air

Yesterday afternoon, close to one hundred undergraduates participated in the first major radio broadcast from McGill. These students, most of them making their premier appearance on the air, were uncertain as to the outcome of their big venture, but they worked hard and hoped for the best. Now, they may rest assured that they have succeeded ably and nobly. They have presented entertainment with which McGill should be proud to associate its name.

Congratulations, too, are in order for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, which organized the series of college programs. There has long been the need to better acquaint the general public with university students and their work, and it is not too much to hope that the present experiment will develop into an established custom.

To Tom Kierans, producer of the McGill show, and his assistant, Tony Janitsch, go credit for launching the series in such a commendable manner.

Unaccustomed as I am

There is no excuse for any McGill man to begin a speech with the above cliché.

Debating has its ups and downs at McGill but there are always opportunities for a man to develop his public speaking ability.

McGill audiences are very tolerant; they suffer even fools patiently if not gladly; they are always willing to encourage freedom of speech even if it is a little trying at times.

Not the least of the many opportunities which the Debating Union offers to would-be orators is the annual contest for the Talbot Papineau Memorial Cup, for which the preliminary trials will be held this afternoon.

It is fairly easy to deliver a set speech; it is more difficult but far better to be able to speak with ease, force, and clarity on the spur of the moment. The Papineau contest is designed to cultivate this admirable faculty. Speakers pro and con are chosen by lot, and are not informed of what side they will take until five minutes before they are to speak. They are required to offer some refutation of the previous speakers' arguments as well as advance their own ideas. The subject itself is not announced until the morning of the debate.

Here is an excellent chance for all students to develop their abilities for quick thinking and clear forceful speaking. With far too many of us, the maxim of the French cynic still holds good "Speech was given so that we might conceal our thoughts."

Therefore, the full support of the student body should be given to the contest being held this afternoon. This is one time, at least, when you can indulge in freedom of speech!

To Commerce

It's come to me and perhaps to you
This worry of subjects we must pursue,
Subjects we know we will not get
Subjects we wish we could forget.

It's not so simple to pick and choose
A course in which without some ruse
You'll surely fail at least one thing;
And then to the professor's door you'll bring
A story told of how you tried

(though in your heart you know you lied).
But just couldn't seem to grasp the theme,
Though you tried and tried by every mean
To answer the questions he had set
On that silly paper you couldn't get.

Let's look at the Chartered Accountant's papers
And see if we can't, for the sake of our fathers,
Who'll save a few dollars; if only twenty,
It's still enough to consider plenty,
Make this course of ours—the best!

Spanish and French are subjects two
Which you're apt to take and not get through.
And though you swear they give you a pain,
And say you'll never take them again,
Still the sophomores find they still have got
To study some more of the silly rot.

The French we could stand if the Prof. would give
Some more commercial; so when we live
In a world of English and French alike
We can use the latter to read and write
Our French accounts.

And to this list we could add a few more
Courses we would not take but for
The unhappy fact that they're there to study,
(Not to crib answers from your nearest buddy)
But if we did, you'd only roar
And say, "all that's been said before."
So what's the use?

—"ANONYMOUS."

"This part of the McGill Radio Show comes to you directly from the Editorial Offices of Canada's oldest daily college newspaper," said Gerald Clark, commentator for the Daily, speaking from the Union. "Throughout its eventful career, the Daily has been known by students as a forum of university expression, and a champion of freedom of speech, and freedom of the press. And more recently, the Daily, as a key member of the newly-organized Canadian University Press, has kept other universities in close contact with day-by-day developments at McGill." Arnold Isenman, News Editor, answering Clark's question, "How does the Daily get the news?"

replied by describing the interval between the assignment book and "blue-pencilled criticisms." Pete Fuller, Sports Editor, described the work of his department, which covers about 6,000 miles in one year, while the Editor-in-Chief told of McGill's place in the general picture of the C.U.P. organization.

Macdonald College took over the next ten minutes. Introduced by Hamish Dunn, Eleanor Carlyle sang "My Hero," while the other contributor from Ste. Anne de Bellevue was "So Many Memories," sung by a girls' trio.

Speaking from the centre of the Lower Campus, Lou Ruschin was heard interviewing three students as they passed by. Jim Dunphy, Engineer, and Hege Kapp, Medical student, told a few details of each of their faculties, while Phyllis McKenna of R.V.C. averred "I've heard it said that most college girls make good housewives."

PLAYERS PRESENT CAVALCADE

The final selection of the Glee Clubs was "Cachucha," from the "Gondoliers" by Gilbert and Sullivan. The Players' Club then presented an historical cavalcade, "McGill Grows Up With Canada." "In 1811," said the commentator, "in the will of a Scottish-born fur-trader, and business leader of Montreal, that instrument of provincial government known as the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning finds its first practical assistance." Tracing McGill's history, the cavalcade mentioned the foundation of the Medical Faculty in 1829, the instalment of Principal Dawson in 1855, the completion of Molson Hall and the Observatory, and the gifts of the great benefactors of McGill—Macdonald, Redpath, Molson, and Strathcona, until in 1888, Sir William Dawson conferred the first B.A. degree ever given to a woman at McGill. "In the twenty years since the Great War ended," concluded the announcer, "we have seen McGill contributing her full share to the progress of Canada; we see research in Medicine, Science, and the Arts, and we see studies leading to industrial growth investigation and exploitation of natural resources." The first University Hour originating from McGill was closed by the singing of "Alma Mater" by the Glee Clubs.

REVUE SMASH HIT

For many a Revue production, has written an appealing and haunting song in the "Chant des Voyageurs," which he conducted. "South Sea Rhapsody," by Howard Simpson, sung sweetly by Audrey Goodwin, and "Tango Nocturne," by Ralph Whitehead, and "Let's Sit This One Out" filled out the musical fare. All in all it can safely be said that the songs this year are tuneful and swingy in the best modern manner.

CHORUS COLORFUL.

The work of the choruses was smooth and showed a precision that could only come from long and tedious rehearsals. The routines themselves were original, with a clever lilt. Beautiful costuming, on a background of smart settings, gave to the stage a colorful appearance.

The only tap work was that done by Fraser McMillan in a "Topsy Tyrolean" dance that was one the Buddy Ibsen line.

This is one time your reviewer can say that the Revue has a smash hit on their hands without lying in his teeth. Very satisfying to the Revue executive, to whom orchids, etc. To the whole cast, laurel wreaths. To the whole staff that took part in this year's production and who generally escape the congratulations, see you at the Cabaret.

McGill Cage Seconds in Final with Westmount Y To-night

FIRST OF TWO GAMES FOR SECTION A TITLE

McGill Favoured After Two Previous Wins Over Westmount—Play Starts at 8

AT M.H.S. GYMNASIUM

Second Match on Monday—Winner Plays Section B for City Crown

PLAYING the first of a series for the Intermediate A crown of the Montreal Basketball League, the McGill seconds will be at home to the Westmount squad in the first of a home and home series at the Montreal High School Gym to-night. The game is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

With the basketball season rapidly drawing to a close, the seconds are ending the season in a blaze of glory. In their two games with the Westmount team this year, McGill have emerged victorious and there is no reason to doubt that they will win again.

SECOND GAME MONDAY.

The second of the two games will be played at the Westmount Y gymnasium, Monday evening at 9 o'clock. The team holding the greater number of points at the conclusion of these games will play the leaders of Section B for the championship of the City Intermediate Basketball League. This game will take place next Thursday.

The Redmen won their way to the final round by defeating Amici last Tuesday in a sudden death fixture by the score of 29-25. In this game the McGill seconds showed a superior brand of cagemanship with Sandberg and Olsen in the starring roles.

COACH OPTIMISTIC.

Coach Van Wagner has high hopes for his boys in their two games with Westmount and also in the sudden death game with the winners of section B, as this latter section is usually weaker than section A. Should McGill win the city title they will not play further but will let the second place team go on to play Sherbrooke, Quebec and other cities for the provincial title.

The team will be made up of Russel, Drysdale, Orr, Reynolds, Robenich, Sandberg, Olsen, Kalfas, Cameron.

GRADUATES TO HONOR DOCTOR WITH BANQUET

McGill Union to Be the Scene of the Get-Together

HELD ON MARCH 23

Doctor Dinner Guest and Chief Speaker

When the Graduates Athletic Club of McGill University honours Dr. Frederick James Tees at its annual dinner at the McGill Union on Wednesday, March 23, at 6.30 p.m., the Club will pay tribute to one of McGill's most illustrious graduates and staunchest followers of her athletic teams. Dr. Tees' well-known charm and modesty have long cloaked an outstanding record of service to Canada, Montreal and McGill. As a scholar, athlete, soldier and surgeon, Dr. Tees stands in the front rank of McGill's noted graduates.

Dr. Tees was born in Montreal in 1880 and after attending Victoria and Montreal High Schools, entered McGill in 1897 and became President of the Freshman class. Although one of McGill's all-round athletes, he specialized in track and the jumping events. In 1899 he carried off the intercollegiate broad jumping championship and was a member of those famous McGill track teams which swept everything before them at the turn of the century. After graduating as a Bachelor of Arts in 1901 with high honours in literature and history, he organized the visit of the Oxford-Cambridge track teams which met McGill and Toronto for the first time in September, 1901. Entering Medicine in the class of 1905, the budding medico gained further scholastic honours as first year prize man in 1902 and also served two terms as President of the McGill Athletic Association, in 1902 and again in 1905.

In 1903 and 1904 he was manager of the hockey team and it is interesting to note in this day of reviving interest in figure skating that the club was known as the Skating and Hockey Club. In 1903 and 1904 the Medical Undergraduate Society entrusted their funds in his care as Treasurer and in the latter year he added further to his scholastic standing by winning the Medical Society Junior prize. In 1904 and 1905 he was elected President of the McGill Y.M.C.A. and Secretary of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. He graduated in 1905 with the degree of M.D.C.M. and climaxed a brilliant academic career by winning the Medical Society Senior prize. The author of Dr. Tees' biography in the McGill Annual in 1905 in describing the famous smile said:

"See little Freddy how he dotes Upon his daily Quaker Oats, And every fellow-student notes The smile that won't come off!"

—and after thirty-three years it still shows no sign of wear!

Continuing his interest in the executive branch of athletics, Dr. Tees was McGill Governor at various periods in the Intercollegiate Athletic Union and from 1902 to 1907 represented the University as

CLASS OF '38

WILLIAM Laurence S. O'Brien—Bill to youse guys—was born on November 1, 1914, in Outremont. Bill went to school at Portsmouth Priory School in Rhode Island, and after finishing his preparatory schooling entered McGill in 1934. He graduates this year with his B.Comm., and McGill is going to lose another of her sons who has made a name for himself in intercollegiate athletic circles.

Bill played Junior hockey for a year before moving up to the Intermediates; he played on the Intermediate team during the 1936-37 campaign, the team winning the Intermediate Intercollegiate title. This year Bill moved up to the Senior ranks, and really hit his stride towards the end of the season when he showed real hockey ability in the closing games. Bill also played Freshman football, and has been a member of the tennis team since 1935, winning the Intercollegiate singles title that same year. He was captain of the team last year.

Bill probably attained his most prominence this last year, playing both tennis and hockey. His speed as a skater will be missed when next year's edition of the Redmen turn out, while the tennis team will Alex Ross (christened Charles Alexander) is a fine example of those boys who are able at college to combine athletics and executive activities with a goodly amount of studying, and make a jolly fine job of them all. He was born in Montreal in 1916, and having been enlightened at Westmount High, entered McGill in the fall of '34. He was treasurer of his Freshman class, was class secretary for '35-36, class vice-president for '36-37, and President of the Arts Undergraduates' Society for '37-38. His activities in the field of inter-collegiate athletics have been restricted to water-polo, but Alex was a star here, playing on the junior team in '35-36, and moving up to the seniors for '36-37.

Studies were not forgotten either; in 1936 he was awarded the Alexander Mackenzie Scholarship, and throughout his course at McGill has been consistently in the upper grades. In graduating in Arts this Spring, Alex will be turning his efforts in other directions, and we wish him a hearty "Bon Voyage."

undoubtedly suffer from the loss of this star. But as a "good fellow" he will probably be missed most of all.

Governor in the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union, becoming President of the Quebec section of the latter body in 1911 and President of the Dominion body in 1912. After pursuing post-graduate study in Europe at various hospitals in England, France and Germany in 1907 and 1908, he was appointed Superintendent of the Montreal General Hospital in the latter year and held that position till 1911, when he entered private practice and was also appointed lecturer in surgery at McGill.

Dr. Tees was a Representative Fellow in Medicine at the University from 1913 until January, 1916, when he joined the 9th Field Ambulance as Captain. For conspicuous bravery in the field he was awarded the Military Cross in November, 1916.

Returning from overseas, Dr. Tees continued his active interest in athletics as honorary President of McGill football, track, hockey and other clubs and he has for many years been attached to the Montreal General Hospital as Senior Associate Surgeon, and in 1936 was President of the Canadian Association of Clinical Surgeons.

The McGill Graduates Athletic Club is honoured to have Dr. Tees as its dinner guest and chief speaker, and his many admirers will join in paying their respects to a man who has generously and unselfishly devoted his valuable time to the advancement of all branches of McGill athletic endeavour.

ENGINEERING 2 DEFEATS MED. 2 IN SEMI-FINAL

Plumbers Show Too Much Class for Rivals and Win Easily

PLAY FINAL TUESDAY

Kaneb, Grant and Heron Star for Winning Team

In a scrappy game at the campus rink last night, Eng. 2 defeated Med. 2 in the inter-class hockey semi-finals by a score of 6-3. The finals will be played next Tuesday in the Forum from 1-2 o'clock.

Norris opened the scoring in the first period, pushing the puck in from a scramble while Meds were forcing with a five-man attack. The play was fairly even for the rest of the period until Kaneb evened it up with several minutes to play.

In the second period Heron scored twice for the Engineers on nice plays, and Scott added one, batting the puck in from a scramble. The play was still very even, and the boys began to rough it up with Hamilton and Rogers drawing penalties.

The Plumbers broke loose in the third session, with Grant scoring two goals, and Kaneb one. Wilson, the Med goaler, was kept very busy.

ORPHANS WIN CLASS HOCKEY TITLE; BEAT SENIORS IN PLAYOFFS

Orphans showed plenty of power on Tuesday night to down the Seniors 9-2 in the deciding game for the class hockey championship. Seniors took the first match 3-2, but the Orphans came back on successive nights to establish their supremacy with two victories by the scores of 5-3 and 9-2.

The game aroused the interest and excitement of the crowd of hockey fans in attendance by its speed and the keen sportsmanlike rivalry of the competing players. May led the scoring with three goals, Blackburn and Robert each tallied twice. Baker accounted for both of the Seniors' goals.

Dip I Win Debate Over Dip II on Co-Op Issue

On Wednesday evening Second Year Diploma and First Year Diploma debated on what proved to be an extremely interesting subject—Resolved, that co-operation in the marketing of farm products should be compulsory in Canada. Diploma II, represented by J. Hammond and J. Watson, upheld the affirmative; Diploma I, in the persons of G. Robertson and P. Veillon, took the negative side of the question. The negative earned a hard-won victory. Both sides were well prepared, took the subject under discussion seriously, and seemed to understand what they were talking about. The debate was considered to have been one of the best Diploma efforts in recent years. As a rule debates at Macdonald are rather poorly attended. Such a one as this deserved a large audience, said Professor Hamilton, chairman of the judges. What it got could only be called extremely small. It is a pity that these debates should be appreciated by so few. N. James acted as chairman. The judges were Professors Bird, Hamilton and Summerby. Professor Hamilton gave a very helpful criticism of the debate.

Plans Progressing For Big Formal—Last of Season

Despite the fact that Mac formal of the past have been occasions of splendour and high class entertainment, the current formal committee has faithfully promised us a formal to eclipse all other formal.

Realizing that a dance is only as good as the music provided, those in charge have definitely done the right thing in engaging that perennial favourite, the ever-popular Howard Simpson and His Privateers.

This event is the last scheduled on the Mac Social Calendar and should prove a fitting climax to a successful year. As is usual the last formal is bound to attract a large crowd, and it is rumored that the committee is planning on providing something big in the way of surprises.

At writing rymes we're not so hot. But if you're wise you'll ask the spot.

SENIORS AND FROSH DEBATE IN FINAL ROUND OF SERIES

The final debate in the Ross-Robertson Shield series will take place next Wednesday night at 6.45 p.m. between the Seniors and Freshmen. This debate should prove to be of general interest in that there will be many seasoned debaters on the platform. The subject for debate has not yet been announced but will undoubtedly be of the usual high standing. Watch the Post-Office Notice board for further information in this regard.

Crepe Suzette is a satin material and "Rex Beach" a popular summer resort, according to two bright McGill Coeds in a True and False contest with the Y.M.C.A. last evening, broadcast over CFCF and sponsored by J. B. Williams Company.

The competitors consisted of six McGill Coeds under the leadership of Helen McMaster versus six young men of the Y.M.C.A. with Lorne Hamilton as captain. It soon became apparent that the Coeds were suffering from mike fright or something, as one after another fell into the discard before a bombardment of quizzes fired by Dr. Henry Hagen, the Master of Ceremonies.
